BUT CRANE WAITS TO HEAR FROM PRESIDENT TAFT.

He Wants to Know Whether His Resignation Has Been Accepted Regarded as a Foregone Conclusion That the President Will Sustain the Secretary

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 .- Nominally, at least. Charles R. Crane of Chicago is still the American Minister to China. Up to late hour this evening he had not been notified of the acceptance of his resignation, which he placed at President Taft's disposal vesterday, a short time before receiving a note from Secretary Knox asking that the resignation be tendered.
No explanation is at hand as to why President Taft has not answered Mr. Crane's telegram, or Mr. Knox has not notified Mr. Crane that the resignation has been accepted. However, it is regarded as a foregone conclusion that President Taft will sustain the Secretary of State in his uncompromising attitude toward Mr. Crane.

As for Mr. Knox, he left Washington this afternoon for Valley Forge, Pa., where he has a country home. Before going all he would say concerning Mr. Crane's case was that he regarded it as a closed incident. It was the talk about the State Department to-day that late last night Mr. Knox had received a cipher telegram from President Taft, who was then at Pasadena, Cal. Nothing as to the nature of such a communication was disclosed by officials.

Some things became known to-day through friends of Mr. Crane which furnish cause for speculation in connection with the Crane incident. Mr. Crane declined to talk for publication, acting on his own initiative and on the advice of Walter Fisher, a Chicago lawyer, who is here with him. Mr. Crane and Mr. Fisher are intimate friends. All that Mr. Crane cared to say was that he intended to remain in Washington until he heard from President Taft, provided the wait was not unreasonably long.

One of the things Mr. Crane's friends told was that Mr. Knox had commended instead of condemning Mr. Crane's remarks at the dinner of the American-Asiatic Society in New York, in which Mr Crane spoke of "the present holdup policy" of this Government in its dealings with China. Incidentally these friends pointed out that what Mr. Crane said at the dinner was obviously jocular and that "the holdup policy" to which he referred was applied to the action of the United States in returning money to China which had been paid as indemnity for the Boxer indignities. In other words, Mr. Crane, it was explained, had used "holdup" in the reverse sense, meaning to show the friendly manner in which the United States had treated China.

But to continue the story as told by friends with whom Mr. Crane had talked since yesterday. It was in the course of conversation over the long distance telephone between Mr. Knox and Mr. Crane that the Secretary of State spoke in commendation of Mr. Crane's remarks in commendation of Mr. Crane's remarks at the American Asiatic Society dinner. Mr. Knox was at Valley Forge and Mr. Crane had called him up on the telephone from New York just prior to leaving there for Chicago to complete his preparations for departing for the Orient. Mr. Crane, it was explained, wanted to say good-by to Mr. Knox and ascertain if the Secretary had any parting instructions. As the conversation was ending Mr. Knox, according to the story told, said something like this: "By the way, Mr. Crane, I want to congratulate you on your New York speech." Mr. Crane was gratified, so he informed his friends, who said to-day that Mr. Crane was surprised when Mr. Knox in their interview last Sunday night referred to the speeches of Mr. Crane as indiscreet.

Mr. Crane's friends said that Mr. Crane

partment officials and was unable to get any instructions from them when he did see them. It was asserted that while Mr. Crane had seen Mr. Knox three times and talked with him once over the telephone no real opportunity had been afforded for extended information on the amount of real estate. She alleges that she conveyed for extended information on the diplomatic situation in the far East, although they had discussed matters of that character after a dinner given by Henry C. Frick at Beverly at which Mr. Knox and Mr. Crane were guests.

Mr. Crane et Mr. Knox in Washington immediately after President Taft had told Mr. Crane that he would appoint him to the Chinese mission, and on the following day they attended a luncheon at which several others were present. The Beverly meeting came afterward.

When Mr. Crane arrived in Washington on Sunday afternoon, he said, before he saw Mr. Knox, that he did not know why he was summoned here from San Francisco. The telegram recalling Mr. Crane, made public yesterday, said:

"You have been charged with the responsibility for the canards appearing to protest against the Chinese-Japanese agreement."

Government officials pointed to this discussed the property because of his declaration that she could not make a will after marriage.

Mrs. Stanley's attorney refused to discuss the suit to-day. He intimated, however, that the trial would be sensational.

In her bill of equity Mrs. Stanley says that on the death of her husband, in 1891, she became possessed of $75,000 in personal property and securities. Being related to Jones she asserts, she turned to him for counsel.

She says she determined to intrust all her property to Jones and signed a power of attorney. At intervals, she says, she was entertained at the lawyer's home here. She declares that she made a will in which she left him the bulk of her property, and that Jones failed to regularly render accounts of his trust.

Government officials pointed to this government officials Government officials pointed to this as evidence that Mr. Crane was dissembling when he declared that he did not know why he was recalled and were disposed to criticise him for that attitude. To-day Mr. Crane's friends said in his defence that in spite of the telegram from Mr. Knox it was literally true that he did not know the reason for his recall. They asserted that Mr. Crane had never seen and did not know of the publication of the despatch in a Chicago newspaper for which he was accused by Mr. Knox of having been responsible. Mr. Crane acknowledged that he had talked with the correspondent of the newspaper about Chinese affairs, but his friends maintain that he did not know, until Mr. Knox disclosed it, that this despatch and dspatches of similar tenor in Japanese newspapers were the "canards" to which Mr. Knox referred in his telegram of recall. Therefore, they contended, Mr. Crane was not dissembling or lacking in frankness when he said that he did not know what he had done that caused Mr. Knox to direct him to cancel his steamship reservations and return to Washington.

speeches, citing what Mr. Taft is declared to have said to Mr. Crane about speaking freely as evidence that Mr. Taft wanted him to talk right out in meeting so that the people of this country would realize the importance of the situation in the Orient. Mr. Crane, they maintained, had kept well within the bounds of discretion in what he said, for according cretion in what he said, for according to their contention he followed the lines of the address delivered by Mr. Taft at Shanghai in 1907, and studied this address for guide and counsel in considering what he should say about conditions in The Crane incident has attracted intense interest in diplomatic circles here. Just what its effect on the Far Eastern relations of the United States will be norelations of the United States will be no-body is now able to predict with any cer-tainty, but it is being asserted that Mr. Crane's recall may make Japan sus-picious of the intentions of the United States toward Chinese affairs, with par-ticular reference to the treaties recently concluded by which Japan obtained im-portant exclusive concessions in Man-churia.

That the foreign establishments here are keenly alive to the situation is shown by their efforts to obtain copies of the Chicago newspaper article which had so much to do with the untimely ending of Mr. Crane's diplomatic career. The prominence given to the State Department's concern over what was said by Mr. Crane to a newspaper correspondent has served to a newspaper correspondent has served obviously to make foreign diplomatic representatives expect interesting de-velopments as to the Government's attide toward the concessions granted by

DUBOIS'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Former Cafe Keeper's Wife Detained to Tell More About It.

HACKENBACK, N. J., Oct. 13 .- Hippolyite Dubois, who for several years had a café at Tenth street and University place, New York, died last midnight on a lonely part of Hudson Terrace, near Fort Lee. Mrs. Ella Dubois was with him at the time of his death. Coroner Tracey will hold an inquest on Friday stopped an automobile that was going toward the Edgewater ferry. She asked for a ride and the driver consented. "My husband has just committed suicide on the roadside," said Mrs. Dubois to the man in the automobile, and the latter notified the Edgewater police when he reached the ferry. Policemen Gould and Allison intercepted Mrs. Dubois as she boarded the ferry and prevailed upon her to return to the spot where she left her

There they found Dubois dead. Near him lay an empty pint whiskey flask. Policemen Bertram and Berger of Fort Lee took charge of the woman and detained her until this morning, when Coroner Tracey sent her to the Hackensack jail to await the result of the incuser.

Coroner Tracey sent her to the Hackensack jail to await the result of the inquest.

When asked by Coroner Tracey why she started for New York instead of returning to the villa Richard at Coytesville, where she and her husband had been staying for a week, Mrs. Dubois made no satisfactory reply. The boarding house is not four blocks from where Dubois was found. Only fifty cents was found on the dead man by Undertaker McNally, who took charge of the remains, and no money was found on his wife.

Mrs. Dubois says she and her husband have been travelling around ever since

SAHARA EMPEROR IN A PET

ANNOUNCES THAT HE'S OUT WITH CARNEGIE TRUST CO.

Le Baudy Said to Have Added a Million Made in the New York Stock Market to the Paternal Sugar Pile-His Lawver Didn't Advise His Latest Step.

From a telephone booth in a Beekman street office building his Majesty the Emperor of the Sahara sent word yesterday to THE SUN office that all was over between him and the Carnegie Trust Company. Jacques Le Baudy is the Emperor's well known name.

Recalling that there was only one Emperor in these days with a private flag of golden bees on a violet field, a re porter whisked round the corner to crave the honor of an audience with H. M. Jacques I. But the Emperor had beat it. He is not a very interviewable monarch

President Charles C. Dickinson of the Carnegie Trust Company furnished a little information. Mr. Dickinson was pretty well up on the Emperor's career, and he spoke kindly though firmly about his Majesty. The Emperor has been putting in his time on the Island of Manhattan for more than a year, and putting it in profitably, too.

Last fall Lebaudy waded into the stock market and got away with $1,000,000, Mr. Dickinson had been informed. Also, according to Mr. Dickinson, $1,000,000 was a small item in the fortune that M. Lebaudy possesses. He dropped a few million francs before he realized that an uncomantic set of European cabinets wouldn't be persuaded to look favorably on the establishment of an empire of the Sahara, with Jacques on the throne, but his father, the old French sugar king, had left Jacques so much money that it was hard to get rid of.

"I know it to be a fact," said Mr. Dickinson, "that he has pretty nearly $4,000,000 n hard cash lying idle in London banks. He has property in France worth $3,000,000 at least, a gold mine in South Africa that he paid $400,000 for and other property elsewhere that will bring the total of his fortune up to $12,000,000. The fact that he's a pretty shrewd citizen some months in the year is proved by the fact that he cleaned up $1,000,000 on the stock market

Mr. Dickinson said that he couldn't understand why Mr. Lebaudy had been sending around notices to the newspapers that hereafter the Carnegie Trust Company is not to be recognized as his repre pany is not to be recognized as his representatives.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Dickinson, "we act as his attorneys only in the direction of his affairs in France. We have nothing to do with his South African business. His counsel, Paul Zizinia, who looks after most of his affairs, is quite satisfied with our administration, and although we have been anxious to get rid of Mr. Lebaudy's affairs. Mr. Zizinia has asked us to continue. I think Mr. Lebaudy will change his mind perhaps."

Mr. Zizinia said that Lebaudy had issued, without consultation with him, the notification that the Carnegie Trust Company was not to be recognized in the future as his attorneys. He thought that Lebaudy had become impatient because the trust company did not accomplish certain business transactions quite as speedily as Lebaudy thought they should speedily as Lebaudy thought they should speedily as Lebaudy thought they should be accomplished.

The Emperor himself was not accessi-ble. At the Savoy and the Plaza, where he is said to have apartments and to re-ceive messages from folk who would like to see him make another brave at-tempt to set up the Lebaudy bees on the Saharan sands, they didn't seem to know anything about him. Ever since the French Government wanted to get him because it couldn't see why a young man French Government wanted to get him because it couldn't see why a young man overburdened with cash should be allowed to play with armies and gunboats and other dangerous tools, Jacques has spent a good deal of time on this side of the Atlantic.

Lots of people have wanted to see Jacques to ask him what he has done with the throne he had built for personal use as monarch of the Sahara, the gorgeous robes of royalty that London tailors worked on for many weeks, the jewel tipped sceptre and his crown of gold.

SEARCH FOR ABANDONED FARMS Secretary Wilson Sees Many Examples of Poor Farming in This State.

UTICA, Oct. 13.-Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who is making an automobile tour of New York State for the purpose of discovering, if possible, why there are so many abandoned farms in the State and what plan can be adopted to remedy this condition, which appears to be alarming, was here to-day after a tour from Albany through the Cobleskill, Schoharie and Susquehanna valleys to Richfield Springs.

Secretary Wilson said that in the trip from Albany to Utica he had never seen so many examples of poor farming. The farms were all right, he was convinced, but the farmers were wrong.

"It was a beautiful country that we passed through," he said, "but the farms generally did not show prosperity. I saw hardly any sheep on the hillsides. Next to the cow the sheep is the most profitable domestic animal. Many of the districts looked depopulated. We saw plenty of children in the villages but few in the rural regions. The country looks deserted. In fact, interest in agriculture appears to have declined in New York State to a great extent. passed through," he said, "but the farms

"State to a great extent.
"Sixty thousand Americans have gone to Canada and taken $60,000,000 with them to buy wheat lands in Canada. They would do better to take up these old farms here and manage them by modern means. here and manage them by modern means. I cannot see whatever started folks away from these farms. Why, last year 8,000,000 bushels of potatoes were imported into New York State. That should not be. Good profit can be made on any of the farms with potatoes at 50 cents a bushel. Many who have gene to the cities must see now that the country offers just as good opportunities. The offers just as good opportunities. The going West idea has about expired. The West is all right, but so is the East. I expect we will see men coming from the West to take up your old farms if nobody else does not be a set of the west to take up your old farms if nobody them."

Secretary Wilson is accompanied by William Whitney, chief of the bureau of soils; John A. Stewart, T. V. Powderly, chief of the division of information in the immigration bureau, and Charles W. Lamon of the New York State Department of Agriculture. To-day the party motored to Waterville, Bouckville, Hamilton and other places in Madison county and stopped at Morrisville to-night. They will occupy to-morrow and Friday in lower Tompkins, Chenango and Broome counties.

"The soils in this State are not exhausted. In some cases they have become unproductive by failure to rotate crops, and again because there has been no change of seed. I am told that many farmers hereabout have planted seed from the same source for fifty years. In the West they know the value of changing

RELIANCE MOTOR TRUCKS.

The Motor Truck is inevitable. As certainly as the taxicab has supplanted the horse-drawn cab, just so surely-and more quickly-must the motor trucks replace horse-drawn delivery.

The City Has Outgrown the Horse

The demands of growing business make prompt delivery over extended territory and quick handling of merchandise imperative. Moreover, motor delivery means economy. 103 firms using our trucks attest their efficiency, reliability and economy. Read their statements on file at our office. They carry conviction; show that one truck does the work of three teams.

We Garage and Maintain Them make all repairs and replacements, keep them in regular service for a fixed sum. We take all the risk and you know exactly what your trucking will cost in advance. Your drivers can operate them. The trucks are so simple that we can teach any one to run them readily. No need to disturb your smooth running delivery department. Your experienced drivers do the work. Phone us at 1001 Columbus or write to the
